Originated by Richard T. Merriek.

Mr. Mattingly said the idea of the formation of the bar association was made by Richard T. Merriek in a restaurant, at the corner of Louisiana averance and Sixth street, in 1871. The first meeting was held at the National Hotel in May of the same year, and from a nue and Sixth street, in 1871. The first meeting was held at the National Hotel in May of the same year, and from a small beginning it has grown to the present large and influential body, The association, he said, was incorporated in 1874. One of the chief objects attained had been the law library, which now numbers 15,000 volumes, and is one of the greatest conveniences to the profession in existence.

Chief Justice Shepard, of the District Court of Appeals, was the first speaker. His remarks were devoted to a high tribute to the profession, and a reference to what he called the growing spirit of the blame them for making money or growing rich, but he sounded a note of warning against the tendency to belittle the profession of the law in the interests of corporate greed.
